Dear Mr. Malamud:

Public.Resource.Org entered into the attached LDC User Agreement for Non-Members, dated October 14, 2007, with the Linguistic Data Consortium, covering a corpus called JURIS. That contract prohibits Public.Resource.Org from disclosing, copying or redistributing the JURIS materials to others outside of Public.Resource.Org's research group, and you have asked LDC to waive that contract restriction. LDC is happy to waive that contract restriction, on the condition that, in the unlikely event that a third person (other than the federal government) contacts Public.Resource.Org or LDC asking that a particular item from the JURIS corpus be removed from public distribution or display, Public.Resource.Org will notify LDC and will take reasonable steps to remove that item until LDC and Public.Resource.Org can determine the merits (or lack thereof) of the third person's request.

If Public.Resource.Org is in agreement, please sign and return a copy of this letter to Chris Cieri at the Linguistic Data Consortium. Thank you again for your inquiries to LDC regarding the JURIS materials.

Sincerely,

Robert F. Firestone
